Our group offers an ideal opportunity to target advertising to a particular section or to blanket the entire market, located midway between Phoenix and Tucson, through the hometown newspapers of each community.

About Us

Casa Grande Valley Newspapers Inc. is a privately owned and operated newspaper and commercial printing company located in Casa Grande, Arizona. It publishes a daily newspaper, five weekly/semi-weekly newspapers and five specialty publications. www.trivalleycentral.com is the company's online version of its newspapers.

Its flagship daily newspaper, the Casa Grande Dispatch, is published Tuesday through Sunday mornings. The Dispatch turned 100 years old in January 2012, and is Casa Grande's oldest business in operation. Founded in 1912 by Evans T. Richardson, the newspaper was purchased by Ruth and Donovan M. Kramer Sr. in 1962, and CGVNI is one of the area's largest employers.

The Florence Reminder & Blade-Tribune, the company's oldest newspaper, has been part of the fabric of Florence since 1892. In the late 1800s, the newspaper's publisher, Thomas F. Weedon, was one of the newspapermen credited with exposing James Addison Reavis, the self-styled "Baron of Arizona," and his fraudulent claim to a large Spanish land grant in southern Arizona. Weedon also ran for governor in Arizona's first year of statehood.

The Coolidge Examiner was first published in 1930 – 15 years before the city of Coolidge incorporated. An excerpt from the 1980 Arizona Newspapers Association directory states, "History says the first copy off the press was placed in the hands of former President [Calvin] Coolidge at the dedication of Coolidge Dam, the second copy was presented to Charles Stauffer, publisher of the Arizona Republican in Phoenix, and that the third was given to the much-celebrated comedian-commentator Will Rogers of Oklahoma."

Founded in 1947 by W.O. Wildman, the Eloy Enterprise has been Eloy's voice in the community ever since.

The Kramer family purchased the newspapers in Eloy, Florence and Coolidge in 1967, 1970 and 1971, respectively, and over the next few decades purchased and consolidated the two newspapers in Arizona City, and started the Maricopa Monitor. They also own the White Mountain Independent and www.wmicentral.com, covering Show Low, Pinetop-Lakeside, Springerville, St. Johns and Snowflake. The Arizona Newspapers Association named Donovan M. Kramer Sr. a Master Editor-Publisher in 1976 and inducted him into the Arizona Newspapers Hall of Fame in 1998. He continued as editor and publisher of the Dispatch and company president until his death in 2009. Ruth Kramer is now company president, and Donovan Kramer Jr. and Kara K. Cooper are co-publishers of the company's publications.

The Wampus Saver provides advertisers added value by covering the market with a shopper format. Non-duplicating with the Casa Grande Dispatch reaches 41,000+ homes.

The TV Roundup is the company's weekly television tabloid distributed each Saturday in the Casa Grande Dispatch. It contains broadcast, cable and satellite channels for Phoenix and the Casa Grande Valley as well as plenty of local advertising.

Each month, Realtors and affiliated businesses "reach out" through the Pinal Real Estate Buyers' Guide, which is distributed to 120+ locations in the Tri-Valley area and available online at www.trivalleycentral.com

Pinal Ways, the company's countywide quarterly magazine, features people, places and events – often with a historical flavor.

The Diner's Daily, a restaurant tabletop publication, is distributed in restaurants in Casa Grande every day.

www.trivalleycentral.com is the market's leader for local news and advertising. Each month it attracts over 144,000 visitors and generates 5.4 million ad impressions – a perfect opportunity for local businesses to advertise online. www.copamonitor.com was started in the fall of 2013 to give followers up-to-date breaking news for the Maricopa area.

ADVERTISING RATES

Casa Grande is a dynamic, involved community, a modern city with rural heritage and old-fashioned values. Its economic base is a mix of retail trade, factory outlet shopping, manufacturing and agriculture.

Founded in 1879, Casa Grande was named for the famous Hohokam Indian Ruins, 20 miles to the northeast. Midway between Phoenix and Tucson, the city has grown to be the largest community in Western Pinal County since its incorporation in 1915.

Casa Grande is strategically located at the intersection of two interstate highways (I-8 and I-10), in an area known as Arizona's Golden Corridor.

Once dependent on agriculture and mining, the community has evolved into a diversified full-service area with manufacturing, retail trade, government and tourist-related employment. Pinal County is comprised of designated Enterprise Zones. Its industries include Frito-Lay, Abbott Laboratories/Ross Products, Monsanto, Franklin Foods, Ehrmann Arizona Dairy, Wal-Mart Distribution Center, Cardinal Glass and Bull Moose Tube. PhoenixMart sourcing center and Sam's Club are making Casa Grande their home, too. Additionally, firms such as Hexcel provide a strong manufacturing base.

Casa Grande is known as a "Community First" hometown, and is a forward-thinking city yet one that has retained its small-town charm.

Casa Grande's location, its mild climate and scenic attractions, make it attractive to tourists and winter visitors. Population in-city is approximately 33,000.

Coolidge, halfway between Phoenix and Tucson, is the commercial center of Arizona's cotton industry. In 1925, after construction of the Coolidge Dam transformed the flat desert into rich farm and ranch land, R.J. Jones laid out an 80-acre site to found the city. The city's name honors the U.S. President who dedicated Coolidge Dam in 1930.

Incorporated in 1945, the city now covers nine square miles and has more than 12,000 residents. The Casa Grande Ruins National Monument, and the warm dry winter climate, make it an ideal tourist and retirement center. Hundreds of thousands of visitors stop to see the Ruins in Coolidge annually.

From Coolidge's founding until the early 1950s, the economy was mainly dependent on agriculture, and, to a lesser extent, mining. Growth was relatively steady until the late 1940s. As water use reached an optimum and mechanical equipment replaced farmworkers, it leveled off. The Coolidge economy diversified as manufacturers located in and near the city, employment increased in mines in eastern Pinal County, and greater emphasis was placed on winter tourism.

Coolidge is in the major growth corridor between Phoenix and Tucson. Today, it is a regional trade and service center for agricultural producers, providing equipment, supplies and personal services for farm families. Community efforts and the addition of manufacturing plants have provided jobs.

Government agencies, such as the Arizona Training Program, Central Arizona College, the Arizona State Prison and the County Courthouse are also major sources of jobs.

Casa Grande Ruins National Monument is a four-story Indian pueblo built around 1350 A.D. by the Hohokam Indians of the Gila Valley on a 472-acre site. Picacho Peak, a state park 26 miles south of Coolidge, encompasses 3,400 acres and displays dense stands of saguaro cactus, as well as many examples of desert vegetation. Hiking, camping and nature study are popular all year round.

Within a short drive from Coolidge are the Gila River Indian Community, with picturesque villages, Catholic missions and an Arts and Crafts Center; the Tohono O'odham Nation, with basketry and handicraft items; Pinal Pioneer Parkway, one of the state's most beautiful scenic drives; and numerous lakes, with excellent fishing and water-based activities.

Coolidge offers special programs for winter visitors. November through April are filled with activities such as potlucks, tours and festivals.

Eloy is an agricultural/travel/commercial center located along the growth corridor between Phoenix and Tucson. In 1902, the Southern Pacific Railroad built a switch about 6 miles west of Picacho, which may have been named for the acronym of "East Line of Yuma."

In 1918, W.L. Bernard, J.E. Meyer and John Alsdorf purchased the east half of the Eloy section and drilled a well. They subdivided the land and called it Cotton City. They also bought land west of Eloy and divided it into tracts for raising cotton. In 1919 an application was made for a post office, but the name Cotton City was rejected in favor of Eloy. The Pinal County community incorporated in 1949.

Eloy lies in the Santa Cruz Basin, one of the state's most fertile agricultural areas. More than 100,000 acres in the valley are irrigatable, producing cotton, grains, vegetables and citrus. Cattle ranching is also important to the area.

Eloy, which is midway between Phoenix and Tucson on Interstate 10, is a stopping place for travelers on the highway which stretches from Florida to California. Its location on the main line of the Union Pacific Railroad, and on I-10 near the junction with I-8, makes it attractively situated for industries where transportation is a key factor. Industries in Eloy include HASA of Arizona, Owens Corning, Schuff Steel, Otto Plastics Arizona, LLC, San Juan Pools, and ELRUS Aggregate Systems. Population is more than 11,000.

Skydive Arizona, one of the largest skydiving centers in the nation, is at Eloy Municipal Airport. The elevation is 1,568 feet. Picacho Peak is the site of the only Civil War battle in Arizona. The battle is re-enacted each spring. Mt. Newman and the rest of the Picacho Mountains offer a beautiful panorama to the east of Eloy. The Sawtooth Mountains have a very distinctive profile to the south and west. There are abundant facilities for tourists and residents alike at Picacho Peak State Park and the surrounding area. Another point of historic interest is the Casa Grande Ruins National Monument, 15 miles north of Eloy. There is abundant dove and quail hunting in season, as well as bird watching for many rare species.

Water enthusiasts enjoy several man-made lakes to the northeast, where they can fish, swim and water ski nearly all year.

Florence is in Pinal County midway between Phoenix and Tucson. Colonel Levi Ruggles, an Indian Agent, staked and platted the town in 1866. Sources cite different origins for the town's name, but all agree it was someone's sister or daughter. By the 1920s, the area had become the agricultural center of the county.

The Florence business district is still on Main Street and, aside from the obvious improvements, downtown remains much as it must have been in the 1880s. Both visitors and residents appreciate the diversity of the community. Florence offers the convenience and lifestyle available in a small western community, yet is only 45 minutes away from the Phoenix and Tucson Metropolitan areas. Incorporated in 1908, Florence, at an elevation of 1,493 feet, has been the county seat since its formation in 1875.

Florence is home to both the Pinal County government complex and two Arizona State Prison complexes. Agricultural products from the area include cotton, cattle, grains and grapes.

In January 1987, Florence was selected for inclusion in the Main Street Program sponsored by the National Trust for Historic Preservation. This public/private partnership program assists businesses in design and promotion, with the ultimate goal of economic revitalization for the central business district.

Because of the year-round sunshine and ideal climate, Florence is the perfect place for the retired and is seeing solid growth. It is excellent for those seeking warm, clean air for health purposes. Population is more than 25,000.

As the fifth oldest town in the state, downtown Florence has been designated an official "Historic District." It is said Florence has more buildings listed on the National Register than any other town in Arizona. Some of the notable historic sites are the first and second county courthouses, both completely different in architectural style. The first was built in 1877 and is open to the public as McFarland State Park. The second was built in 1891 of American-Victorian architecture and is still in use today. The historic Clarke House now houses the Florence newspaper.

Maricopa is 16 miles south of Interstate 10 in western Pinal County. Over the last 150 years, its location has changed three times. Its first site was Maricopa Wells, about 10 miles northwest, a trading center for stagecoaches passing through the Southwest. The Civil War ended the mail lines and a new railroad a few miles south was the death knell for Maricopa Wells. Maricopaville, 3.5 miles south, was born when a junction was needed to connect the Southern Pacific Railroad linking Yuma and Tucson with a branch line to Phoenix. When Tempe wanted to be on the railroad line in 1887, Maricopaville was moved to Maricopa's current location.

Maricopa is quickly growing as South Mountain residential developments brim over into its rich agricultural valley. Although Maricopa's businesses and industries have traditionally been geared toward farming and ranching, its economic base has been diversifying through companies such as Volkswagen and Nissan, both of which have proving grounds in the area. Harrah's Ak-Chin Casino also contributes to the economy.

With the addition of the I-10 Maricopa Rd. exit, housing developments, such as Rancho El Dorado changed the face of Maricopa forever. The town was incorporated in 2003. With families moving in from the suburbs of Phoenix, this rural area experienced positive growth with new schools. The population has jumped to 45,000.

Arizona City is a planned community at the midpoint of the Phoenix-Tucson corridor, one of the more rapidly developing areas of the state.

Surrounded by productive agricultural land, Arizona City has both industrial and commercially zoned areas, along with such amenities as a 48-acre lake, an 18-hole golf course and several parks. The community, which was established in 1960, is 54 miles from Tucson and 56 miles from Phoenix. It is in south-central Pinal County. The town has an elevation of 1,505 feet and is currently still unincorporated. Year-round population is more than 10,000.

Arizona City lies in the Santa Cruz Basin, a fertile agricultural area. More than 150 square miles in the valley are irrigated and produce cotton, jojoba beans, grains, vegetables and citrus. Cattle ranching is also very important to the area's economy.

Arizona City's location on Interstate 10 between Phoenix and Tucson lends its residents metropolitan convenience while maintaining a rural atmosphere. Also, its proximity to the junction of I-8 and I-10 makes it attractive to industries where transportation is a key factor.

Presently, M.C. Davis Electronics, producers of electronic components, calls Arizona City home.

A 48-acre man-made lake is available for sailing and fishing. Several large lakes, many with full-service marinas where one can enjoy fishing, swimming and boating, are within a short scenic drive to the north and northeast.

Rock hounds will enjoy the selection of distinctive agates that can be found at the Agate Fields just south of Arizona City.

Directly west of Arizona City is the northeast corner of the sprawling Tohono O'odham Nation.
